The Haunted by Niki Valentine, reviewed by Len Newland

<http://www.infinitas.com.au/Product.php?bar=9780751545081>

Mousy wife Susie is taken by her school teacher husband-of-ten-years to an isolated hut in the wilds of northern Scotland near Fort William in the middle of winter (!) for a second honeymoon (!). That alone speaks of a less-than-satisfactory marriage, and sure enough when they're cut off by floods for two weeks their marriage is severely tested. Ghosts are mentioned from the third chapter onwards, reflecting the title, but this isn't a ghost story. It's a psycho drama (the publisher says psycho horror), in which we see all sorts of things in and affecting third person single point of view character Susie's mind. The novel reminds me of Doctor Caligari's Coffin, in which the female POV character is similarly affected. This novel makes a strong point about the problem of loneliness versus the problems incurred in avoiding it, and is arguably worth reading just for that.

I thought the story tension built up well to the climax (ignoring a few just-get-on-with-it writing contrivances) and the POV character was well differentiated from the non-POV character. I did find the reading slow, however. Less than ideal grammar, expression and logic flow left me confused in the first two chapters over whether the characters were in the hut or still in Fort William. More seriously, I thought the POV character overwritten and neither character likeable, with the result that I skimmed many paragraphs and even chapters looking for story development rather than character paranoia, the novel seeming as much case study as story. Overall, I thought the story line was a good one, particularly in making its point. I imagine habitual skimmers would have no problem, and more serious readers may well identify with Susie and enjoy the novel on that account.

Red Rover By Tsana Dolichva

The Martians, having eavesdropped, knew far in advance that another rover was coming from the blue planet. They made the appropriate preparations to hide all traces of themselves — of all organic matter — and suspend their above-ground operations. Once the rover landed, they avoided its field of view and restarted some out-of-sight surface enterprises.

The rover analysed rocks, moved a little and took some photos. Although they were inconvenienced, the Martians were pleased to see it followed the same patterns as previous rovers and hence posed no threat.

A game started among the children called How Close Can We Get To The Cute Little Rover While It's Uploading Its Data And Can't See Us. Three red-shelled friends managed to slip past their disapproving parents, who had conveniently forgotten their own exploits with the now defunct old rover. Victorious and ready for adventure, the three emerged from a concealed cave in the otherwise empty rover region.

The rover was in the middle of its upload salute, antenna pointed skywards and all other instruments motionless; inactive for the duration. One of the children, Dilgi, had hacked into a hidden surveillance camera and kept an eye on it while they scuttled nearer. They approached from behind its main optical sensors, far enough away that the curvature of the planet hid their cave.

They had covered about a kilometre when Dilgi cried out. The rover's antenna was moving! Its uplink was complete and soon it would start recording data again. The other two squealed and all three skittered for the nearest cover.

"That was too close," said Zyrna, once they were safely clear of the abandoned cave entrance.

"It's fine," said Qari. "There's no way it saw us."

"Probably not," said Dilgi.

"Next time," said Qari, "we should start closer to the rover. It won't see us while it's uplinking and we'll have more time."

"No way!" said Zyrna. "What if it does see us?"

"More time for what?" asked Dilgi.

Qari waved a spiny hand dismissively.

"Its uplink time is way faster than the last rover," said Zyrna. "We have no idea what else it might do. I'm not going out there again until we know it's not going to shoot lasers or something."

"Where's the fun in that?" asked Qari.

"Don't be silly," said Dilgi. "As if the Bluelings have invented lasers if they're still throwing clunky things like that at us."

"You don't know that!" With a final look of ill-hidden fear, Zyrna scuttled back to the populated areas.

"I want to go out again tomorrow," said Qari. "Will you come too?"

"I think it's cute." Dilgi warbled uncertainly. "But maybe you can go first. Just in case there are lasers."

The next day, uplink-time found Dilgi in another empty cave. This time they were barely a hundred metres from the rover.

"Good luck," said Dilgi, handing Qari a radio receiver. "The upload just started."

Qari rocked sideways in satisfaction then crept out of the cave. The alien machine was clearly visible. Even Qari had to acknowledge that the cave entrance was dangerously close. Especially if lasers might be involved. Just in case, Qari covered it up completely before ambling forward.

A metre from the rover, Qari hesitated. Its optical sensor was pointed away and the uplink was clearly still in progress. Dilgi cooed at the machine through the radio in Qari's ear. Qari ignored the noise and sidled around it. Up close, the rover looked very different to the one of their parents' generation. It was about the same size, but it was shinier and the instruments looked different. None of them, despite Zyrna's fears, looked like weapons.

"Run!" screamed Dilgi. "It's alive!"

Qari looked up. Antenna raised high, the uplink was definitely still in progress.

But the rover's optics were moving. The camera slowly swung around to face a frozen Qari. The giant artificial eye blinked.

Qari yelped and skittered away. Underground, Dilgi was already fleeing.

But it was too late. Sixteen minutes and twenty-three seconds later, the blue planet started to panic.

Expand your mind, Enter new worlds.

It is the Afterlife. The end of the world is a distant, distorted memory called "the Age of Fed Up Shit". A sentient glacier has wiped out most of North America. Medical care is supplied by open-source nanotechnology, and human nervous systems can be hacked.

Abby Fogg is a film archivist with a giggling feeling that her life is not really her own. She may be right. Al Skinner is a former mercenary for the Boeing Army, who's been dragging his war baggage behind him for nearly a century. Woo-jin Kan is a virtuoso dishwasher with the Hotel and Restaurant Management Olympics medals to prove it. Over them all hovers a mysterious man named Dirk Bickle, who sends all these characters to a full-scale replica of Manhattan under construction in Puget Sound. An ambitious novel that writes large the hopes and anxieties of our time: climate change, social strife, the depersonalization of the digital age, Blueprints of the Afterlife will establish Ryan Boudinot as an exceptional novelist of great daring.

Dr. Jake Ross, a university astronomer, wants nothing more than to teach a few classes each semester and continue on his research. However, he is being aggressively recruited to be the science advisor to Frank Tomlinson, an ambitious politician with his eye on the U.S. Senate.

Tomlinson is in need of an edge that will allow him to defeat his opponent at the polls, and Dr. Ross can contribute just that: MHD.

MHD, or magnetohydrodynamics, is a new innovation that will allow electricity to be generated efficiently and cheaply. The senate is essentially guaranteed if Tomlinson can deliver unlimited energy to voters at less than half the price of nuclear power. But MHD is still in its infancy, and although the outlook is extremely promising there are great, and deadly, risks.

The incumbent senator will not give up his seat without a fight, and as Dr. Ross discovers, the world of politics carries its own dangers. Nothing has prepared Dr. Ross for the extreme tactics that desperate and powerful people are willing to use.

War With the Newts TP $21.95 www.infinitas.com.au/Product.php?bar=9781612190235

This legendary but previously hard-to-get novel is a hilarious dystopian satire about the choice between ecological catastrophe and making your quarterly financial goals. As both a commentary on capitalism and the rise of fascism, as well as an early work of science fiction, it is one of the most important books of the twentieth century.

When the curmudgeonly sailor Captain von Toch discovers a breed of large, intelligent newts in far-off Polynesia, he realizes that, with a little training, they could be used as a virtual army of complacent pearl-divers in shark-infested waters. Then von Toch's financial backers realize that the newts can be trained for all kinds of underwater civil engineering projects, or to build new islands, even to defend shorelines—wielding weapons, no less! There's only one problem: released from their previous environment, the newts replicate like, well, aqua-bunnies. And soon they aren't so complacent anymore.

Acclaimed by many as the first dystopian novel, and others as the best book of science fiction ever written, Karel Capek's masterpiece remains all that and more: smart, funny, and relevant.

Bug#ck: The Worthless Wit and Wisdom of Harlan Ellison HC $19.95 www.infinitas.com.au/Product.php?bar=9781599290614

Harlan Ellison has a lot to say; as one of America's most honored entertainers, he has been writing fiction and commentary, and speaking on college campuses and television talk shows, and challenging his audiences to think outside the box for sixty years.

With 90 books bearing his by-line and thousands of stories and essays and anecdotes and speeches and interviews to his credit, Harlan Ellison has written countless memorable lines in the course of his career.

BUG#CK (a word that Ellison coined in the 1960s and a favorite of Stephen King's) wonderfully and unforgettably gathers some of Harlan's best bon mots.

"The two most common elements in the universe are Hydrogen and stupidity."

"K is for 'Kenghis Khan'; He was a very nice person. History has no record of him. There is a moral in that, somewhere."

"The problem with being a pain in the ass is that you never quite know who's trying to get you."

"Why do people keep insisting that I join the 21st Century? I LIVE in the 21st Century! I just don't want to be bothered by the shitheads on the internet!"

"I have no mouth. And I must scream."

"I think love and sex are separate and only vaguely similar."

Greymane believed he'd outrun his past. With his school for swordsmanship in Falar, he was looking forward to a quiet life, although his colleague Kyle wasn't as enamoured with life outside the mercenary company, the Crimson Guard. However, it seems it is not so easy for an ex-Fist of the Malazan Empire to disappear, especially one under sentence of death from that same Empire.

For there is a new Emperor on the throne of Malaz, and he is dwelling on the ignominy that is the Empire's failed invasion of the Korel subcontinent. In the vaults beneath Unta, the Imperial capital, lie the answers to that disaster. And out of this buried history surfaces the name Stonewielder.

In Korel, Lord Protector Hiam, commander of the Stormguard, faces the potential annihilation of all that he holds dear. With few remaining men and a crumbling stone wall that has seen better days, he confronts an ancient enemy: the sea-borne Stormriders have returned.

Religious war also threatens these lands. The cult of the Blessed Lady, which had stood firm against the Riders for millennia, now seeks to eradicate its rivals. And as chaos looms, a local magistrate investigating a series of murders suddenly finds himself at the heart of a far more ancient and terrifying crime – one that has tainted an entire land....

Stonewielder is an enthralling new chapter in the epic story of a thrillingly imagined world.

Phantom Evil APB $12.99 www.infinitas.com.au/Product.php?bar=9781921793905

A secret government unit is formed. The six members know a little of the otherworldly — each has honed a psychic talent of their own.

Jackson Crow, part English-part Cheyenne, heads the group. Haunted by his experience with an ancestral ghost who saved his life as a child, and the recent murders of two previous teammates.

To counterbalance Jackson's careful scepticism, he's been paired with Angela Hawkins, a young woman who learned the painful lesson of loss at an early age.

In a historic mansion in New Orleans's French Quarter, a senator's wife falls to her death from a balcony. Most think she jumped, some say she was pushed. And yet others believe she was beckoned by the ghostly spirits that inhabit the house — once the site of a serial killer's grisly work.

Whether supernatural or all too human, crimes of passion, greed and desire will cast the pair into danger of losing their lives and their immortal souls.

In the secret heart of London, under the cover of endless darkness, the Nightside caters to anyone with any unusual itch that needs to be scratched. But enter at your own risk. The party animals who live here may be as inhuman as their appetites. . .

My name is John Taylor. The Nightside is my home. I didn't plan it that way. In fact, I once tried to get away. But I came back. And now it seems I'm settling down, with a full-time job (in addition to my work as a very private eye) as Walker—the new Voice of the Authorities in the Nightside—and a wedding in the offing.

I'm marrying the love of my life, Suzie Shooter, the Nightside's most fearsome bounty-hunter. But nothing comes easy here. Not life. Not death. And for certain, not happily-ever-after. Before I can say "I do," I have one more case to solve as a private eye—and my first assignment as Walker.

Both jobs would be a lot easier to accomplish if I weren't on the run, from friends and enemies alike. And if my bride-to-be weren't out to collect the bounty on my head. . .

On the Trail of Harry Potter (Harry Potter) TP $39.95 www.infinitas.com.au/Product.php?bar=9780615433264

In ON THE TRAIL OF HARRY POTTER, the author demonstrates how, through her portrayal of the characters and their interactions, her plotting, humor and style, J. K. Rowling created a blockbuster and a classic that will continue to appeal to readers of all ages throughout the globe for generations to come. Refuting a number of critics who have judged the work "inferior," she shows how the success of the story lies in Rowling's gift for writing. This study is divided into four sections. The first is devoted to four main characters and their interactions; the second covers Rowling's plotting and timing; the third treats her humor and style; the fourth analyses Rowling's peripheral works (Fantastic Beasts and Where to Find them, Quiddich Through the Ages and The Tales of Beedle the Bard) and the fourth examines the differences between the films and the original text, explaining in what ways the films add to the books and in what ways they do not measure up to them. In the conclusions the author mainly addresses the criticism that the Harry Potter books are one-dimensional, since they lack an instructive or inspirational level. She demonstrates that, on the contrary, the books contain moral messages, primarily in their allegory of the horrors of World War II and in the example of selfless heroism set by Harry himself. And she emphasizes that, ultimately, what matters is not the message but the magic of a story such as Rowling's, one that fascinates young readers and makes them want to continue the reading experience.

Danny McCoyne is the exception to the rule. His ability to hold the Hate has given him a unique position in Hinchcliffe's army, for he uses his unique skill to hunt out the remaining Unchanged. But as the enemy's numbers shrink, so the pressure on McCoyne increases, until he finds himself at the very centre of a pivotal confrontation. The outcome will have repercussions on the future of everyone who is still alive. It's down to him alone: will it be Them, or Us?

His dreams imperiled, Menessos needs Seph more than ever . . . and she needs him. Now, Seph has magical promises to fulfill for the wæres, multiple mundane family challenges to meet, vampire politics to confront . . . and into the bargain she's balancing two sexy supernatural males. While Morts Slept TP $29.95 www.infinitas.com.au/Product.php?bar=9780385343749

Foreword by Dave Eggers

These previously unpublished, beautifully rendered works of fiction are a testament to Kurt Vonnegut's unique blend of observation and imagination. Here are stories of men and machines, art and artifice, and how ideals of fortune, fame, and love take curious twists in ordinary lives. An ambitious builder of roads fritters away his free time with miniature trains—until the women in his life crash his fantasy land. Trapped in a stenography pool, a young dreamer receives a call from a robber on the run, who presents her with a strange proposition. A crusty newspaperman is forced onto a committee to judge Christmas displays—a job that leads him to a suspiciously ostentatious ex-con and then a miracle. Featuring a Foreword by Dave Eggers, While Morts Slept is a poignant reflection of our world as it is and as it could be.

Zone One HC $29.95 www.infinitas.com.au/Product.php?bar=9781846555985

In this wry take on the post-apocalyptic horror novel, a pandemic has devastated the planet. The plague has sorted humanity into two types: the uninfected and the infected, the living and the living dead. Now the plague is receding, and Americans are busy rebuilding civilisation under orders from the provisional government based in Buffalo. Their top mission: the resettlement of Manhattan. Armed forces have successfully reclaimed the island south of Canal Street - aka Zone One - but pockets of plague-ridden squatters remain. While the army has eliminated the most dangerous of the infected, teams of civilian volunteers are tasked with clearing out a more innocuous variety - the 'malfunctioning' stragglers, who exist in a catatonic state, transfixed by their former lives.

Mark Spitz is a member of one of the civilian teams working in lower Manhattan. Alternating between flashbacks of Spitz's desperate fight for survival during the worst of the outbreak and his present narrative, the novel unfolds over three surreal days, as it depicts the mundane mission of straggler removal, the rigours of Post-Apocalyptic Stress Disorder, and the impossible job of coming to grips with the fallen world.

And then things start to go wrong.

Both spine chilling and playfully cerebral, Zone One brilliantly subverts the genre's conventions and deconstructs the zombie myth for the twenty-first century.

The Warrior Heir (Heir Chronicles 01) PB $16.99 www.infinitas.com.au/Product.php?bar=9781780620473

War is coming and magic is spiralling out of control...

Seph McCauley has spent the past three years getting kicked out of one exclusive private school after another. And it's not his attitude that's the problem: it's the trail of magical accidents - lately, disasters - that follow in his wake. Seph is a wizard, orphaned and untrained and his powers are escalating out of control. Worse, as the magical accidents that plague him grow in intensity, Seph makes a discovery: the stories he's been told about his parents' life and death are fabrications. The people he most trusted have been lying to him.

After causing a tragic fire at an after-hours party Seph is sent to the Havens, a secluded boy's school on the coast of Maine. Gregory Leicester, the headmaster, promises to train Seph in magic and initiate him into his mysterious order of wizards. Maybe here he will find a community he can trust. But Seph's enthusiasm dampens when he learns that the training comes at a steep cost. Who can he trust, when everyone around him is keeping secrets? And where can he turn, when he finds himself at the centre of a war he may well not survive

Doctor Who

Inside the Tardis PB $29.95 www.infinitas.com.au/Product.php?bar=9781845111632

In this study of a television institution--the first to draw extensively on the full riches of the BBC Written Archives--James Chapman explores the history of Doctor Who from its origins to the present day. He shows how the series has evolved to meet changing institutional and cultural contexts, while retaining its quirky, eccentric and distinctively British characteristics. And he demonstrates how the production history of the series has allowed it to renew and refresh its format in response to developments in the wider world of science fiction.

Piers D Britton

Doctor Who has always thrived on multiplicity, unpredictability and transformation, it's worlds and characters kaleidoscopic and shifting, and Doctor Who's complexity has grown. With its triumphant return to TV in 2005, it was made up of four different fictional forms, across three different media, with five actors simultaneously playing the eponymous hero. TARDISbound is the first book to deal both with the TV series and with the "audio adventures," original novels, and short story anthologies produced since the 1990s, engaging with the common elements of these different texts and with distinctive features of each.

TARDISbound places Doctor Who under a variety of lenses, from examining the leading characteristics of these Doctor Who texts, to issues of class, ethnicity and gender in relation to the Doctor(s), other TARDIS crew-members, and the non-human/inhuman beings they encounter. TARDISbound also addresses major questions about the aesthetics and ethical implications of Doctor Who.

Craig Cabell

Doctor Who is the world's longest-running science fiction television series, and the role of the Time Lord has been a career landmark for all 11 actors who have played him. Few roles in television history are as iconic, demanding, or as anticipated by its legion of fans as that of the famous time traveler with two hearts. This compendium of facts about the men behind the role reveals to fans who was a bouncer for the Rolling Stones before taking control of the Tardis, who was nearly blown up in World War II aboard HMS Hood, who had a fondness for woolly hats and a grandson who would become Harry Potter's nemesis, and who played a transvestite barmaid before becoming a Who heartthrob. All these bizarre facts are explained, and many more, as the lives and careers of each Doctor, including the youngest and most recent incarnation, Matt Smith, are put under the spotlight and given the credit they so richly deserve. Including interviews with many of the stars, this is a must-have for any fan.

Too many griffon mounts were killed in the battles in Thay Chessenta. If "the Brotherhood of the Griffon" is to be more than a name, new mounts must be found.

As it happens, the masked witches in Rashemen have griffons available to a worthy few who can slay the undead that are committing atrocities throughout the land. Aoth volunteers his band, as do other groups who are in the market for the fighting beasts. But things are not as they seem. Epic battles between rival sellswords, berserkers, and aerial skyships punctuate this whirlwind tale set in a barbaric land of oracles, nature spirits, and talking animals.

Greg Bear

A long time ago, I was a living, breathing human being. I went mad. I served my enemies. They became my only friends.

Since then, I've traveled back and forth across this galaxy, and out to the spaces between galaxies--a greater reach than any human before me.

You have asked me to tell you about that time. Since you are the last true Reclaimer, I must obey. Are you recording? Good. Because my memory is failing rapidly. I doubt I'll be able to finish the story.

Once, on my birth-world, a world I knew as Erde-Tyrene, and which now is called Earth, my name was Chakas...

In the wake of apparent self-destruction of the Forerunner empire, two humans--Chakas and Riser--are like flotsam washed up on very strange shores indeed.

Captured by the Master Builder, misplaced during a furious battle in space, they now find themselves on an inverted world where horizons rise into the sky, and where humans of all kinds are trapped in a perilous cycle of horror and neglect. For they have become both research animals and strategic pawns in a cosmic game whose madness knows no end--a game of ancient vengeance between the powers who seeded the galaxy with life, and the Forerunners who expect to inherit their sacred Mantle of duty to all living things.

In the company of a young girl and an old man, Chakas begins an epic journey across a lost and damaged Halo in search of a way home, an explanation for the warrior spirits rising up within, and for the Librarian's tampering with human destiny.

This journey will take them into the Palace of Pain, the domain of a powerful and monstrous intelligence who claims to be the Last Precursor, and who now has control of both this Halo and the fate of Forerunners and Humans alike.

Called the Captive by Forerunners, and the Primordial by ancient human warriors, this intelligence has taken charge of, and retasked, the Master Builder's cruel researches into the Flood--which it may have itself unleashed on the galaxy more than ten thousand years before.

Tomorrow's War: Science Fiction Wargaming Rules HC $69.95 www.infinitas.com.au/Product.php?bar=9781849085311

A miniatures wargame of gritty futuristic combat, Tomorrow's War projects the tactics and technology of today's military conflicts two hundred years into the future. While robot drones, anti-gravity vehicles, and advanced battle-suit technology have changed the face of warfare, the essentials of combined-arms tactics have remained constant. Using the popular Force on Force rules as a basis, Ambush Alley Games has created the most realistic and tactically challenging science fiction wargame on the market. The rulebook includes a detailed 'future history' and a campaign system so that individual battles can be linked into an ongoing storyline.

Magic the Gathering

MTG Commander (Multiplayer Pack) $44.95 www.infinitas.com.au/Product.php?bar=653569634386

100 card deck plus 3 oversized cards. Commander decks offer an interesting play format for MTG.

There are 5 different decks in the range, sold individually.

Magic: The Gathering Commander consist of five different 100-card singleton decks. To continue the tradition of oversized cards associated with our multiplayer releases, each deck also includes three premium oversized legendary commander cards that can be used in lieu of the normal versions of the cards (which are also in the deck).

The 51 new cards are legal in Eternal formats (that's Vintage and Legacy), but they are not legal in Standard, Extended, or Block Constructed. The Magic: The Gathering Commander decks are each three "wedge" colors with corresponding new commanders. "Wedge" is a term used for three-color combinations consisting of an allied pair and their shared enemy. Examples of famous "wedge" cards are Lightning Angel (Red ManaWhite ManaBlue Mana) and Doran, the Siege Tower (Black ManaGreen ManaWhite Mana). These combinations have been woefully short-supplied on legendary creatures, so each deck contains the corresponding Planar Chaos Dragon (such as Intet, the Dreamer) as well as two new legendary commanders in those colors, plus oversized foil versions of all three.

When crime reporter Jimm Juree is forced to follow her family from Chiang Mai to a fishing village on the Gulf of Siam, she's convinced her career is over. Her journalism will surely dwindle to reports on the annual monsoon-induced floods, for what crimes could possibly happen in such an out-of-the-way place? Answer: plenty. A local palm oil plantation owner and his worker are excavating a well. They dig down six feet and hit metal. It turns out to be the roof of an old Volkswagen combi, which, once unearthed, is found to contain two skeletons - one of them wearing a hat. A monk is murdered in Lang Suan, the nearest town. There is apparently no motive for the killing and no suspects are found. But there are odd connections between this killing and several others around the world.

Kerr and Gunther as the perfect combination of writer, character, setting and genre. With impeccable research that is accurate in every detail yet never interferes with narrative pace, Philip Kerr has created an epic series of thrillers that deserve all the praise that has been heaped upon them.

'Prague Fatale' is Bernie Gunther's eighth outing. Set in Prague in 1942, it delivers all the fast-paced and quick-witted action that we have come to expect from Philip Kerr. It is an outstanding thriller by a writer at the top of his game

Sand Sharks (Deborah Knott) PB $19.95 www.infinitas.com.au/Product.php?bar=9780446618090

Judge Deborah Knott can't wait to trade the lush fields of Colleton County for the clear blue ocean and long stretches of sand at Wrightsville Beach. A summer conference for the North Carolina district court judges couldn't come soon enough for Deborah, who is overwhelmed by her newly married life and the responsibilities of being a mom.

Lying beneath the hot summer sun in Wrightsville and reconnecting with old friends over delicious seafood dinners in nearby Wilmington, Deborah finally begins to unwind. But tensions are building beneath the surface of this seemingly peaceful resort area. Deborah's relaxing trip to the seaside takes a sudden, dark turn when she stumbles upon the strangled corpse of one of her less-admired colleagues. It doesn't take long before she realizes that the killer may have another target, much closer to home.

Unwilling to stand idly by while the murderer draws near, Deborah begins to investigate alone. At each turn, her list of suspects grows to include everyone from her judicial colleagues and friends to local television personalities and restaurant employees, and soon it seems that anyone in Wilmington could be capable of murder.

River of Shadows BPB $19.99 www.infinitas.com.au/Product.php?bar=9781849164023

Rain falls relentlessly on the Po valley in northern Italy, and the river is swollen to its limits. A huge barge leaves its moorings, steering an erratic course downstream and away into the foggy night. When finally it runs aground hours later, the bargeman is nowhere to be found. That same evening, Commissario Soneri is summoned to investigate the apparent suicide of a man in nearby Parma. He and the bargeman were brothers, and when the detective discovers that they served together in the fascist militia fifty years earlier, the incidents seem likely to be linked. Resentments dating from the savage civil strife between Fascists and Partisans in the closing years of the war still weigh heavily, and as the flood waters begin to ebb, the river yields up its secrets: tales of past brutality, bitter rivalry and revenge.

Science Behind the Secret: Decoding the Law of Attraction PB $19.95 www.infinitas.com.au/Product.php?bar=9781439134283

For over forty years, writers have described and pondered the aspects of The Law of Attraction in works such as The Power of Positive Thinking, Creative Visualization and the phenomenal best seller, The Secret. Millions of copies of books on this subject have been sold in just the past two years. Now, Dr. Travis S. Taylor connects these visionary concepts to modern physics, and in The Science Behind The Secret shows that with every thought we have we are creating our own reality; and that we can control our own realities if we learn how through The Science Behind The Secret!

Dr. Taylor, a scientist, engineer and science fiction writer who has studied the esoteric nature of quantum physics and the universe, takes the reader on an eye-opening journey of understanding this theory. Through modern quantum physics, Dr. Taylor shows that The Secret is actually a restatement of the accepted physical models of quantum coherence and entanglement.

The Science Behind The Secret explains these advanced scientific concepts through popular culture references, science fiction examples, philosophy discussions, self-help stories, and literary anecdotes in an amusing way that only a skeptical Southern scientist could.

Water Dreamers: The Remarkable History of our Dry Continent BPB $24.95 www.infinitas.com.au/Product.php?bar=9781921656552

The ways Australians live and think have been shaped by water — or rather by the lack of it.

The Water Dreamers tells the story of the settlement of Australia and how our culture has been shaped by the scarcity of water and by the need to fill the imagined silence of the continent with the sounds of civilisation. It's the story of who we are today as much as a history of how the country grew.

From the moment the First Fleeters stepped ashore, water determined progress. The Tank Stream that flowed through what is now the Sydney CBD provided fresh water until settlers and their livestock fouled it. Then water carriers carted buckets from a nearby swamp, which was later piped, in a major feat of engineering, into the growing settlement. When it ran dry sights were set further afield. And so the story continued. Explorers followed waterways. Frontier battles between Aboriginal and white Australians were as much contests over water as they were of land.

Illustrated with eight pages of beautiful colour plates, The Water Dreamers is an illuminating look at the ways people have imagined and interpreted Australia while struggling to understand this continent and striving to conquer its obstacles. It's an important work of environmental and cultural history with an unmistakable sense of how, today, we are part of that continuing story.

Norman Davies

White Eagle, Red Star TP $49.95 www.infinitas.com.au/Product.php?bar=9780712606943

A neglected event in history, the Polish-Soviet War of 1919-20 was not the final episode in the wars of intervention, but an independent enterprise on the Polish side with minimal support from the Entente Powers. In many English history books, it appears under the erroneous title of the 'Russo-Polish War', and is treated as just one spot in the rash of border conflicts which broke out all over Europe at this time. As far as Soviet history is concerned, the war with Poland represents the first occasion when the Red Army set out to revolutionise the whole of Europe - for the Poles, it was an occasion when they finally justified their claim to independent statehood. In WHITE EAGLE, RED STAR, Professor Norman Davies gives a full account of the war, with its dramatic climax in August 1920 when the Red Army - sure of victory and pledged to carry the Revolution across Europe to 'water our horses on the Rhine' - was crushed by a devastating Polish attack, since known as the 'miracle on the Vistula'. Drawing on both Polish and Russian sources, Davies illustrates the narrative with documentary material which hitherto has not been readily available and shows how the war was far more than an 'episode' in East European affairs, but largely determined the course of European history for the next twenty years or more.

Alan Frost Australian Author

Botany Bay: The Real Story BPB $24.95 www.infinitas.com.au/Product.php?bar=9781863955546

For the first time in two hundred years, here is a full and authentic account of the beginnings of modern Australia.

We all know the conventional story. Established as a dumping ground for Britain's criminals, Australia owes its existence simply to over-crowded jails and a daunting remoteness from everywhere else.

In Botany Bay: The Real Story, Alan Frost goes beyond these clichés to shed new light on the decision to settle New South Wales. He examines the hopes and fears of the politicians who took the decision, and the larger commercial and military needs that underwrote it.

In the years before the First Fleet sailed, Frost reveals, British authorities considered sending convicts to sites in North and South America, Africa and New Zealand. In deciding on Botany Bay, they hoped not only to rid Britain of its excess criminals, but also to gain a key strategic outpost and take control of valuable natural resources.

The culmination of thirty-five years' study of previously neglected archives, Botany Bay is a groundbreaking work that offers new and surprising insights into how Australia came to be.

Harsh Cry of the Heron (Otori 04) BPB $22.99 www.infinitas.com.au/Product.php?bar=9780733623400

The Harsh Cry of the Heron is the dazzling continuation of the Tales of the Otori, an unforgettable epic with a vast emotional landscape, a classic work that crosses genres, genders and generations.

The world of the Otori has entranced readers since the first book in the Trilogy, Across the Nightingale Floor, was published in 2002. Now Lian Hearn again takes us back to a land that might be feudal Japan or may be another place altogether in the stunning sequel, The Harsh Cry of the Heron. Lord Otori Takeo and his consort Kaede have ruled for over sixteen years. The Three Countries are rich, peaceful and prosperous. The sacred birds, the houou, nest at Terayama and a fabled creature, the kirin, has appeared on their shores. Heaven seems to smile on them. Yet their very success has attracted the attention of the distant Emperor and his general, the warlord Saga Hideki, who covet all the wealth of the Three Countries, especially Takeo's heir, his eldest daughter, Shigeko, now of marriageable age. Find out who lives and dies, who conquers, and who is still loved. The story winds up to an unexpected and moving conclusion that will make you want to start reading the Trilogy all over again.

Blossoms and Shadows BPB $22.99 www.infinitas.com.au/Product.php?bar=9780733629006

From the author of the phenomenal and bestselling TALES OF THE OTORI series comes a stand-alone historical novel set in 19th century Japan.

This is the story of the birth of modern Japan, told by Tsuru, a young woman who breaks every stereotype of the Japanese lady. We meet her on the day of her sister's wedding, and soon realise that she will not accept the same domestic role that her sister is about to take on. Instead, Tsuru is ready to embrace the new world, defend her beliefs, look for love, and follow her career as a doctor working alongside her husband on the battlefields.

In the mid 1860s Japan was in the grip of a revolution almost as tumultuous as the French Revolution 100 years earlier, yet we in the West know very little about it. This book lets readers feel they are there among the revolutionaries, guided by the engaging character of Tsuru. By the end of the first chapter readers will feel they know her, and want to fight with her as she battles against the conventions of the day and falls into a forbidden love.

Sarah Murgatroyd Australian Author

Dig Tree: The Story of Burke and Wills BPB $24.95 www.infinitas.com.au/Product.php?bar=9781921520990

Murgatroyd has brought together for the first time new scientific and historical evidence, and tells the story of Burke and Wills, the explorers who set out to cross Australia from coast to coast, in brilliant detail. Here, at last, is the book that brings to life Australia's most infamous story of exploration. The Dig Tree describes vividly the remarkable courage, the suffering and the moments of sheer lunacy, as Burke and Wills struggled to survive in a harsh land they did not understand.

Sarah Murgatroyd's style is immensely readable. She has written with warmth about Burke and Wills and their party, and reveals fascinating detail - for example, that Burke had a notoriously bad sense of direction, and was famous for getting lost even on the way home from his local pub!

Though we all know the basic story of the Burke and Wills expedition, The Dig Tree reveals just how little most of us know of the individuals, the politics, the blunders and the ambitions behind this extraordinary event in Australia's history. This is essential and utterly compelling reading.

They were called "The Devil's Brood", though never to their faces. They were the four surviving sons of Henry Plantagenet and Eleanor of Aquitaine. With two such extraordinary parents, much was expected of them. But the eldest--charming yet mercurial--would turn on his father and, like his brother Geoffrey, meet an early death. When Henry died, Richard would take the throne and, almost immediately, set off for the Holy Land. This was the Third Crusade, and it would be characterized by internecine warfare among the Christians and extraordinary campaigns against the Saracens. And, back in England, by the conniving of Richard's youngest brother, John, to steal his crown.

A Stirling engine is a machine that converts heat into mechanical energy by alternately compressing and expanding air. The expanding air acts on a piston to provide mechanical force: you simply heat up the air chamber, give the flywheel a whirl and away she goes. The only source of energy is heat and as long as heat is applied, the engine will keep running and running. The principle behind the Stirling engine is being utilised in some large-scale thermal/solar energy systems and while you won't quite be able to power your house with it, it's still a fascinating and educational project for the junior mad scientist to experiment for hours with. Beautifully engineered from stainless steel, brass and a genuine timber base. It has 2 ball bearings and should become an heirloom.
